

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Senatorial Level

Washington, Feb. 16.—FROM time to time the charge is made that the Senate of the United States is deteriorating; that in character and intelligence its level has been lowered; that it lacks dignity and self-respect. Perhaps this is unjust to the Senate. Undoubtedly, there are many dreadful demagogues among the senators. But there are some good men, too.

HOWEVER, it must be conceded that in the six weeks it has been in session this year, nothing the Senate has done tends to enhance its reputation or increase its prestige—quite the reverse. And there are quite a few senators candid enough to admit it. A number of examples can be given, the most conspicuous of which is the four weeks' FEPC filibuster which practically strangled the Senate for all that time and very recently ended with the sidetracking of the measure.

WHOLLY disregarding the merits of the bill and the question of whether or not any filibuster can be justified, that filibuster was a farce and a fraud. For the plain truth is, that from the start, it was perfectly clear that the filibuster was going to succeed and the only possible result was the agreement finally reached by which the bill was laid aside. A long time before the finish it was almost impossible to find a senator on either side who did not fully understand this. Certainly, the leaders understood it from the first day.

WHY, then, did they let the thing run for four weeks, during which the Senate was unable to turn a wheel. The answer, of course, is—politics. Both Democratic and Republican senators in the majority favoring the bill were anxious to establish a record—some to please the CIO, others to placate the Negro vote in pivotal Northern and Western states. And neither the Administration Democrats nor the regular Republicans really exerted themselves to stop the filibuster. Instead, they let it proceed without inconveniencing themselves by long sessions or any genuine test of endurance. Some of them actually helped the filibuster along by making speeches themselves while the filibusters rested. In fact, the whole business was saturated with false pretense and hypocrisy.

ANOTHER little incident that reveals the way in which one of its committee men on credit on the Senate was let Mr. George Allen, whom the President has named RFC commissioner, clown himself into the job. There were some pretty sound reasons for objecting to this appointment, but Mr. Allen nullified them, so far as the committee was concerned, by quips, cracks and grimaces that apparently "threw the committee into stitches." Certainly, Mr. Allen's witticisms, when read in print, seemed feeble and not very funny. But they must have seemed funny to the members of the committee who were reported as "roaring with laughter." Almost immediately they acted favorably upon his nomination.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All in The Various Communities

GLEAINED BY SCRIBES

Four Bucks county boys were prize winners in the Eshelman 103rd anniversary contest for the outstanding young farmers in the East. They were:

John E. Tice, Fricks, who is 14 years old, a member of the Hilltown 4-H Club, and spends most of his time with his capons and a brood of pigs.

Willard C. Raub, Trumbauersville, a 12-year-old farmer who has special interest in chickens.

Donald W. Raub, Trumbauersville, is 14 years old and spends his time with his rabbits which he sells for their skins.

John H. Moore, R. D. 3, Perkassie, is 14 years old, a member of the Hilltown High School Agriculture Club at Blooming Glen, and interested in pure bred Yorkshire stock. All four won the same prize which was 100 blood-tested baby chicks and 100 pounds of starter feed.

Some difficulty was experienced at the combination sale conducted at Solebury by the Rice brothers in disposing of quite a large amount of light weight poultry. The offering of poultry was quite large, but with it was much light stock, which found very little demand. Some of the birds sold as low as 2 cents a pound.

Approximately 750 persons attended the sale, total proceeds of which amounted to $6161.42. The sale of the poultry amounted to $2366.50.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

In Detroit, James F. Dewey, special mediator appointed by Labor Secretary Schwelienbach, reported "much progress" after a conference of President Thomas of the UAW and President Wilson of General Motors. The conferees will get together again today.

President Truman described his new wage-price policy in the battle against inflation as "not a new line" but "a bulge." The Chief Executive emphasized that there would be no "break-through" if everyone cooperated until the bulge was eliminated.

After nearly six hours of debate, the UNO Security Council agreed unanimously that British and French troops should be withdrawn from Syria and Lebanon as demanded by those nations. However, four divergent views as to when and by whose orders the troops should leave were upheld by Britain and France. Syria and Lebanon, the United States and China and the Soviet Union.

A map, said to be an authentic copy, showing the frontier between Italy and Yugoslavia as envisaged by President Wilson, has been found by the Italians, who will submit it to the deputies of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

JUBILANCY GREETINGS STEEL SETTLEMENT

125,000 U. S. Steel Corp. Employees Prepare To Resume Work Monday

LITTLE FELLOWS COLD

By James L. Kilgallen
PITTSBURGH, Feb. 16.—(INS)—Settlement of the nation-wide "Big Steel" strike was received with quiet jubilation today in the Pittsburgh area.

The 125,000 U. S. Steel Corporation employees affected by the agreement signed with the CIO United Steel Workers Union in Washington last night prepared to return to their jobs at 12:01 Monday morning.

They were happy over winning their demand for a wage increase of 18½ cents an hour and pleased with the prospect of getting back to work.

While other steel companies were expected to follow U. S. Steel's lead and sign similar agreements, spokesmen for these concerns showed a certain amount of restraint.

Officials of the big independent Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation said the board of directors would be called together to "go into the matter."

Representatives of other steel concerns said they wanted to study the agreement with U. S. Steel before acting.

DOLLARS TO CANADA

With the question of the British "loan" coming up soon in Congress, it is interesting to see a report on the amount of American money being invested in our nearest British neighbor, Canada.

By coincidence, the contribution to the Dominion is almost exactly the same as that which the British are seeking. England wants $4,400,000,000; Canada received $4,500,000,000 during 1946.

How did the Canadians get the money? Unlike the British Socialist government, our northern neighbors relied on the principles of free economy and free enterprise. The money was attracted by making its investment attractive—not by reliance on "ideology" and covert threats.

The money is free capital in America which emigrated to Canada because it found business-like incentives. It was invested in industrial securities and Canadian government bonds.

Supply and demand, plus the principles of competition, took the money to the Dominion while England has marked time waiting for the same amount to be handed over on a silver platter.

The Canadian bonds pay 3 per cent, which is a higher yield than American government bonds. Also, the Canadian government (unlike our own) has not pegged bonds and currency at arbitrary levels; bonds and currency are under par. Since the government is putting its financial house in order, both appear to be headed for par. There is the incentive of a probable profit in the principal to be added to that of the interest.

The broad financial policy of the Canadian government is essentially similar to that which is the traditional policy of the Republican Party in the United States.

The outlines of this policy may be listed as: holding government costs well below the receipts of a reasonable economy from improper foreign competition.

The fruits of these policies are almost self-evident in

OPERATION OF USES EXPLAINED TO CLUB

Francis Matthews, Manager of Local Office, Tells of Detailed Activity

BEFORE EXCHANGEITE, SEVERAL ATTENDANTS

Members and guests of The Bristol Exchange Club were given an insight into the purposes, operation, accomplishments, and problems of the United States Employment Service, frequently referred to simply as USES, when Francis Matthews, manager of the local office, addressed the club at its weekly meeting Thursday evening.

Prefacing his remarks by a brief outline of the development of the Federal Employment Service, Mr. Matthews pointed out that the service originated as part of the Immigration Bureau about the time of World War I. "At that time the problem arose of distributing the large number of immigrants coming to America in various parts of the country where labor was needed, rather than having these immigrants settle, overcrowd, and become a burden in the large cities of the Eastern seaboard. To meet this situation, the government set up offices in various parts of immigration to furnish free information to the newcomers to American shores as to where he could obtain employment and how to get there. This service continued in varying degrees throughout the years, fluctuating with the ebb and flow of the tide of immigration.

"It was not until the early 1930's, however, that the Federal Employment Service became a truly important part of the machinery of our national government. The enactment of the Social Security and Federal Unemployment Relief Acts by Congress in 1933, necessitated the establishment of a suitable administrative agency; and, since the benefits afforded by these measures were directly based upon and correlated with employment, it was only natural that the work of administering those laws should be turned over to the one agency which had theretofore handled employment matters. The agency itself was transferred from the Immigration Bureau to the Department of Labor and Industry.

"In addition to the vast work of setting up and correlating all the details needed in connection with Social Security and Federal Unemployment, the Employment Service was also called upon to aid in administering the many alphabet agencies, such as C. W. A., W. P. A., and P. W. A., established by the Federal Government during the depression. Insofar as employment was concerned.

"The enactment of the Federal Unemployment Relief Act, containing, as it did, an offer to the various State governments to share with them the cost of unemployment relief, led at once to the establishment of employment services

SIX PERSONS WILL BENEFIT THROUGH A $30,000 ESTATE

Florence Francis Snell, Late of New Hope, Made Bequests

THE MANSELL ESTATE

Late Mrs. Bessie Tomlinson, Langhorne, Names Sisters, Brothers

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 16.—Leaving an estate of $30,000, Florence Francis Snell, of New Hope, named six persons as beneficiaries. The decedent, who died January 20, executed her will March 29, 1943.

In that instrument she bequeathed $1,000 to Joseph B. Julian Alden and Nancy Lathrop, Elizabeth Bauman and Allen Strang. The residue was given to Amy Hore, Alice Halse, Ethel Townsend, Arthur B. Snell, Alfred C. Snell and Charles S. Snell.

In a codicil, written two days later—March 22, 1943—she revoked the bequest to the five heirs, indicating that she had given them gifts during her life time.

Miss Marion Lyman, of this place, who died January 14, left a personal estate of $1200 to her sister, Sophie. The will was executed February 12, 1932, and was a holographic instrument. Thomas Ross was named executor.

The $1,000 personal estate of David H. Anderson, Yardley, will be inherited by his widow, Helen B. Anderson, 64 North Delaware avenue, Yardley. The will was written August 12, 1941, and Mr. Anderson died January 7.

A GOOD BARCAIS FOR REDS
If the Soviet-Anglo-American arrangement made at the Yalta Conference is a fair sample of Franklin D. Roosevelt's generosity, then all the people of the United States will fervently hope that Secretary Byrnes is 100 per cent correct in his statement that no record exists of any other secret agreements.
The Yalta pact was bad not only because of the open-handed manner in which lands and privileges were tossed into Russia's lap but because of the brazen manner in which the Big Three violated the solemn declaration in the Atlantic Charter that none of them would seek territorial aggrandizement.
Furthermore, the belated announcement that a bargain of this sort was effected shows how insincere were Mr. Roosevelt's frequent protestations that the American public had been informed at the time of everything that was done at Yalta.
As the State Department now reveals it, Russia was to declare war on Japan two or three months after Germany's surrender. In return for this promise, she would receive outright possession of the Kurile Islands and of Sakhalin as well as highly important commercial and economic rights in Manchuria. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill further agreed that "these claims of the Soviet Union shall be unquestionably fulfilled after Japan has been defeated."
In view of the small part which Russia played in the conquest of Japan, nobody can ever say that she did not strike a good trade at the Yalta Conference.

ONE IN THIRTEEN

Statistics of accidents are always shocking. In 1945, more than 96,000 persons lost their lives accidentally in the United States and more than 10,000,000 suffered injuries. Estimated economic loss caused by accidents was the staggering sum of $5,200,000,000. This includes wages, medical expenses, overhead costs of insurance, production delays, damage to equipment and property from traffic accidents and fires.
One of every thirteen persons in the nation suffered a fatal or disabling accident during the year. A startling feature of the report just issued by the National Safety Council is the fact that the nation went on a traffic spree starting with V-J Day, and which has not ended. Prior to August 14 traffic deaths had increased 1.3 per cent over the same period last year. Since that date the death toll has shot up 36 per cent.

National and local safety councils work continually to educate the public. It is impossible to comprehend what the toll would be were it not for this service. Cost in life and limb, to say nothing of dollars and cents, is too great to be ignored. There must be no let-up in vigilance.

A study of government bulletins discloses that anybody can sit down to an adding machine and prove anything except that he doesn't owe any income tax.

THUS, the hearing was turned into a farce. It does seem that after the roaring had ceased, some senator might have said, "Well, Mr. Allen, you are no doubt very amusing. But after all, this is a serious business in which we are engaged and serious questions affecting your qualifications for a high public office have been raised. So let's cut out the clowning and behave more like men and less like children." That would have been in keeping with the traditions of the Senate and more becoming to the senators.

ANOTHER incident of a slightly different kind but equally difficult to reconcile with senatorial respect occurred in another Senate committee when a blistering, bull-dozing labor leader publicly berated the President of the United States and members of Congress, applying to them derogatory adjectives and calling names. No senator rebuked this leader. No senator suggested that he moderate his language. No senator hinted that it would be better manners to show some respect for the President and to speak less rudely of congressmen. Instead, they took it without a word. They sat there meekly while the labor leader exuded contempt for both the legislative and executive branches of the Government, apparently either agreeing with him or afraid to disagree.

IT WAS an altogether unpleasant performance. It left a bad taste in the mouth. Linked with other incidents of the kind, it goes a considerable distance toward substantiating the allegation that the Senate today is at its lowest level. It is not surprising that senators of courage and character should feel mortified and resentful, doubtful whether it is worth while trying to hold on to membership in such a body.

Washington on the eve of the Pearl Harbor attack, stated "this means war," but went on to emphasize that the "democracy of a peaceful people" could not seize the advantage of the initiative by striking first.

President Truman once again voiced confidence in Edwin W. Pauley, the center of the dispute that led to the resignation of Secretary Ickes, and predicted that the Senate would confirm his nomination to be Under-Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Truman said Mr. Ickes had praised Mr. Pauley on one occasion and that Navy Secretary Forrestal had recommended Mr. Pauley's nomination.

Today's Quiet Moment

By William Carroll

We thank Thee, Father, for the comfort of so great a faith as the Christian faith, for a faith which lifts us out of our deepest distress and transforms our anxiety into hope. But grant us, O Eternal God, the willingness to accept the challenge as well as the comfort of the Christian faith. Make us ever conscious of the fact that we have been saved to serve. This we pray in the Master's name. Amen.
